PRESIDENT'S
COMMISSION ON WHITE HOUSE FELLOWSHIPS
THE WHITE HOUSE

January 28, 1977

Dear Mr. Knoche:

Thank you for your letter of January 21, in response to mine addressed to then-Director-designate Sorensen. When a new Director is confirmed, I should appreciate your bringing him or her up-to-date on our correspondence and conversations.

The 1977-78 White House Fellows will be named by the President on May 23, 1977, and will be interviewed by potential principals (including, I trust, the Director of Central Intelligence) during the period June 20-24. At the end of that week, and certainly not later than the following Monday morning, all assignments of the new White House Fellows should be completed. Your Director would, in other words, know if he or she had a Fellow, and, if so, which one, by that date, and your processing procedures could begin at once.

Since, given the change in administrations, I anticipate that there will be a new Director of this Commission by April, when our placement and assignment interview details are usually worked out, I will ask him to call Mr. Janney to work out those mechanics at that time.

Thank you again for your interest in this matter. The idea of having a White House Fellow assigned to the Director of Central Intelligence is very exciting to me, and I hope and trust it can all be successfully worked out.

With best wishes,

Cordially,

Bruce H. Hasenkamp
Director

MEMORANDUM FOR: Robert W. Gambino
Director of Security

FROM : [REDACTED]
Executive Officer, DDA

SUBJECT : President's Commission on White House
Fellowships

As you may or may not be aware, Mr. Bush was asked by the Director of the White House Fellowship program about the Agency's interest in having White House Fellows assigned here. Our response indicated that, indeed, we would be interested; but we did point out that, in view of the fact that a White House Fellow would be assigned to the Director of the Agency, it would be necessary for the Fellow to undergo the same security processing as Agency employees. I pass this on to you for information at this point since around April 1977 we will, no doubt, be hearing from the Commission on White House Fellowships concerning the assignment of one of their Fellows.

January 7, 1977

Dear Mr. Sorensen:

Congratulations upon your selection by President-elect Carter to be the Director of Central Intelligence. The Chairman and members of this Commission and the White House Fellows join me in extending best wishes to you as you prepare to assume your new role of service to the American people.

The White House Fellowship program, as you may know, was established in 1964 by President Johnson for the purpose of identifying especially promising young leaders, and providing them, early in their careers, with a year of exposure to, involvement with, and education in the making of public policy and the exercise of public leadership.

Fellows are selected through a nationwide competition, and serve for one year. Although they are Presidential appointees, the Fellows and the program administration, including the selection process and the membership of this Commission, are strictly non-partisan. The current class, like their predecessor groups, includes Democrats, Republicans and independents.

The Fellows as a group participate in a wide-ranging program of seminars with leaders and opinion-makers in both the public and private sectors. (I enclose, for your information, a list of last year's seminars.) This broad examination of leadership and issues is focused more particularly through each Fellow's assignment, to the personal staff of the Vice President, members of the Cabinet, heads of major agencies, and principal members of the President's staff. A list of the 1976-77 Fellows and their assignments is enclosed, along with two copies of our current brochure, which more fully describes the program and features biographies of the current Fellows.

Although a White House Fellow has never been assigned to the Director of Central Intelligence during the past twelve years, George Bush and I have discussed the idea several times in recent months. We both feel that such an assignment would be enormously beneficial, to the White House Fellow, to the Director, and to the Agency, and we made preliminary plans for the Director to participate in interviewing the 1977-78 White House Fellows, after they are named by the President in May. I hope you will share George's enthusiasm for the idea, and that we can continue to plan for possible assignment of a Fellow from the next class to you.

Mr. B.C. Evans and I have discussed some of the mechanics and logistics that would be involved in placement of a Fellow with you. I will be in touch with you in April about the precise procedures and to answer any questions you have about the program.

Congratulations again! I look forward to working with you, and hope you will call me whenever the Fellowship office may be of assistance to you. I also hope that it will be possible for you to meet with the 1976-77 class of Fellows sometime after you are confirmed, as a major part of their education in government.

Sincerely yours,

Bruce H. Hasenkamp

Statement of Purpose

The purpose of the White House Fellowship program is to provide gifted and highly motivated young Americans with some firsthand experience in the process of governing the Nation and a sense of personal involvement in the leadership of the society.

The program seeks to draw exceptionally promising young people from all sectors of our national life—the professions, business, government, the arts, and the academic world. It is essential to the healthy functioning of our system that we have in the nongovernmental sector a generous supply of leaders who have an understanding—gained at firsthand—of the problems of national government. In a day when the individual feels increasingly remote from the centers of power and decision-making, such leaders can help their fellow citizens comprehend the process by which the Nation is governed.

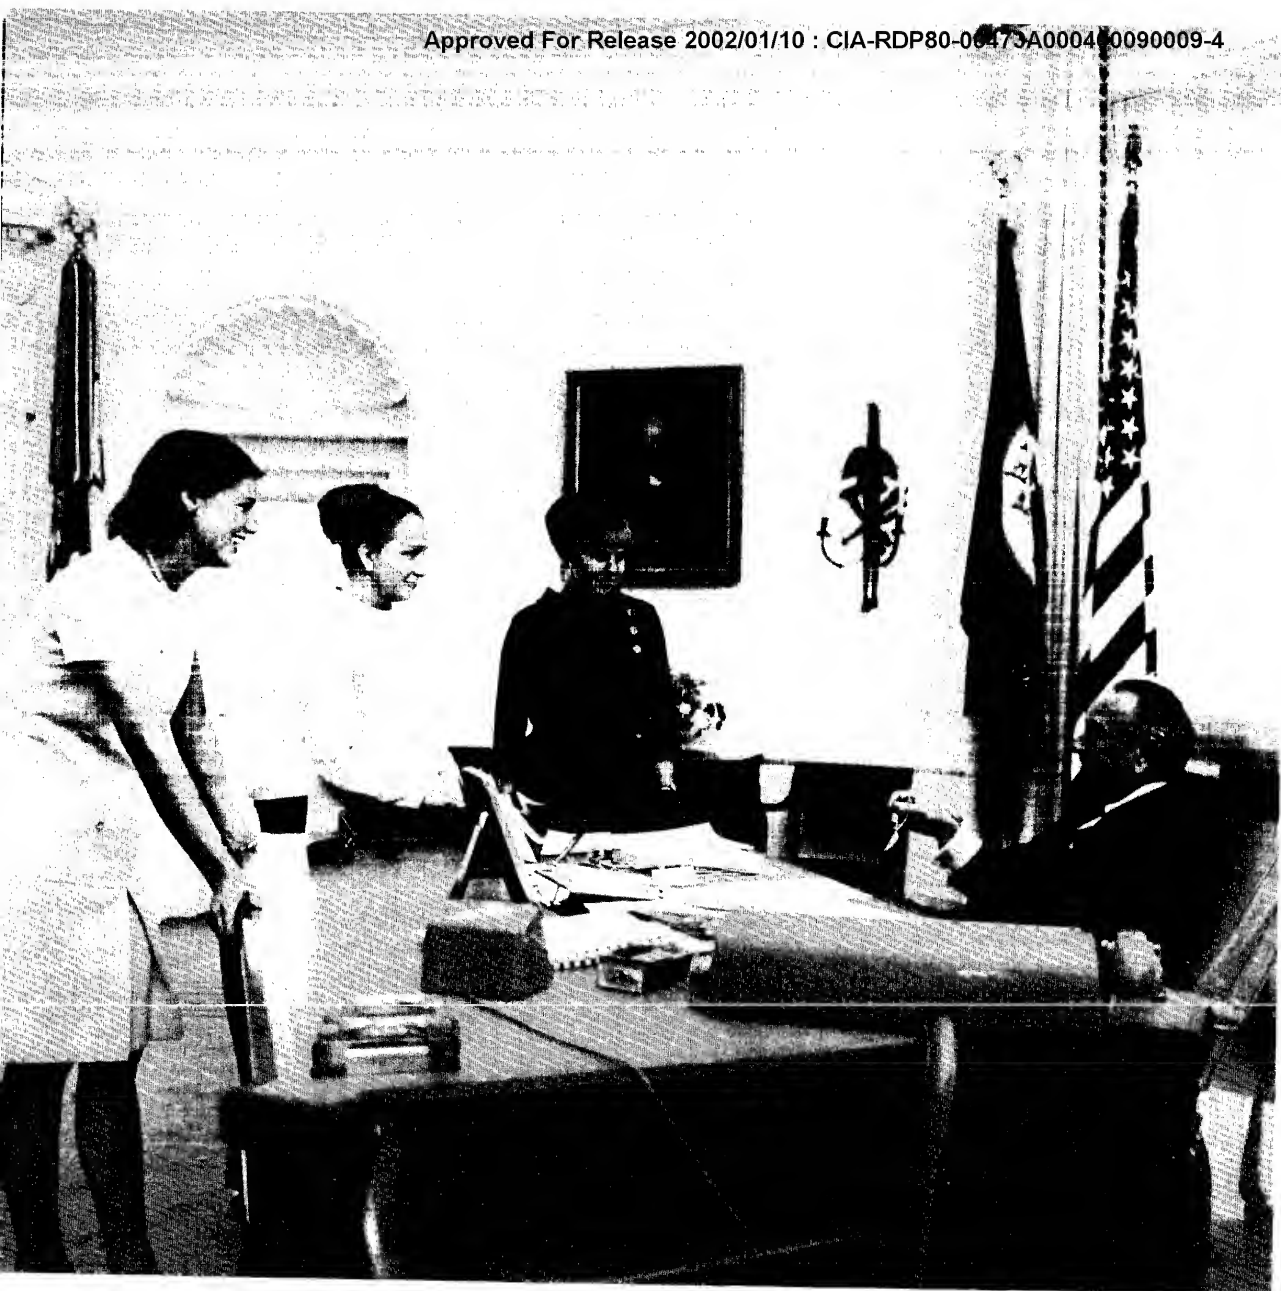

In this country today, we produce great numbers of skilled professionals; but too few of this intellectual elite provide the society with statesmanlike leadership and guidance in public affairs. If the sparsely settled American colonies of the late 18th Century could produce Washington, Jefferson, Adams, Monroe, Madison, Hamilton, Franklin, and others of superlative talent, breadth, and statesmanship, should we not be able to produce, in this generation, ten times that number? We are not doing so.

Surely the raw material is still there; and just as surely more must be done in the development of our ablest young people to inspire and facilitate the emergence of such leaders and statesmen. Their horizons and experience must be broadened to give them a sense of personal involvement in the leadership of the society, a vision of greatness for the society, and a sense of responsibility for bringing that greatness to reality.

The White House Fellowship program is designed to give superbly qualified young Americans precisely those experiences.

achievement demonstrated early in their careers, strong leadership qualities, and devotion to the quality of life in America.

The White House Fellowship program has achieved results far beyond those originally expected. At the time it was developed 12 years ago, it was generally thought that those individuals selected as Fellows would vastly broaden their perspectives; Presidents and Cabinet Secretaries since that time have found that the presence of the White House Fellows in the departments has importantly broadened their perspectives as well.

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Carla Hills considers a policy question posed by her 1975-76 White House Fellow.

History of the White House Fellowship Program

Declaring that "a genuinely free society cannot be a spectator society," the late President Lyndon B. Johnson announced the establishment of the White House Fellowship program in the East Room of the White House on October 3, 1964.

President Johnson had noted that large numbers of young people came to help in government in times of national emergency, but that few did so in ordinary times, and that opportunity for young Americans to gain high-level government experience was substantially rarer than in the early days of our history.

These thoughts among others led President Johnson to found the White House Fellowships, to draw to Washington on a regular basis the brightest and most promising young men and women in the Nation. He wanted them, during a year of intensive education in the shaping of public policy and in the exercise of public leadership, to have "an opportunity to know and to understand the responsibilities and challenges of public service," according to Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson.

"The program was, for him, a chance for exceptionally talented young people to experience some of the same satisfactions and personal growth which were afforded (to him as) a young Congressional secretary more than 30 years before."

Each year since 1964, a group of not more than 19 young citizens has been chosen to serve as White House Fellows. For one year they participate in educational activities involving all parts of governmental life and aspects of leadership in the private sector. In this way they learn, at firsthand, the major issues facing their government and their society and the challenges of finding and implementing solutions.

Since its inception in 1964, 198 White House Fellows have been selected. Among them have been corporate executives, bankers, accountants, an architect, city planners, medical doctors, college professors, a policeman, engineers, attorneys, school administrators, journalists, military officers, management consultants, association officials, state legislators, a symphony conductor, and others. They have come from 43 states and the District of Columbia, and from various political, economic, and educational backgrounds.

They shared in common a personal commitment to excellence, exceptional ability and

The Program in Action

A White House Fellowship consists of two complementary educational experiences: an individual assignment, through which the Fellow has the opportunity to observe and participate on a day-to-day basis in the work of a major Executive Branch official, and a wide-ranging program of seminars, in which the Fellows, as a group, study and learn the broader aspects of public and private leadership.

Assignment

Each White House Fellow is assigned—typically as a special assistant—to the Vice President, a member of the Cabinet, the head of an independent Executive Branch agency, or a principal member of the President's staff, such as the Director of the Office of Management and Budget or the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

This assignment provides the opportunity for close observation of the process of public leadership and enables the Fellow to come away with a sense of active participation in the governmental process and actual contribution to the business of government.

Although White House Fellows will probably have occasion to draw upon their specific prior training, education, and experience, they should not expect to continue what they had been doing before entering the program. A Fellow with an education background, for example, may work extensively on a public health project; an engineer may spend a major part of the year setting up a job-training program; and an architect may do more writing than designing.

Rather than fit the Fellows to their pre-Fellowship specialities, the program aims to tap their resources and to develop their abilities in their broadest sense. Since White House Fellows constantly meet new challenges and experiences, they must be flexible and readily adaptable individuals.

The actual nature of one's assignment varies with the particular talents and interests of the Fellow, and depends greatly on what needs to be done. The experience and role of an individual Fellow depend to a substantial degree on the personal relationship he or she forms with a specific Cabinet-level officer and his or her regular staff, on how hard and successfully the Fellow applies himself or herself to whatever tasks are assigned or become available, and on the Fellow's individual initiative in developing relationships and initiating worthwhile projects.

AID Administrator Daniel Parker and his 1975-76 White House Fellow (at left) brief the President on the Guatemala earthquake and their proposals for U.S. assistance.

HEW Secretary David Mathews describes to his 1975-76 White House Fellow a way by which his department can better tap citizen ideas for policy.

A 1975-76 White House Fellow chats informally with AFL-CIO President George Meany before the Fellows' luncheon meeting with him.

By the end of the year, however, most Fellows will have written speeches, attended conferences, supervised staff work, reviewed or helped draft proposed legislation, answered Congressional inquiries, chaired meetings, drafted reports, conducted briefings, and spearheaded one or more projects.

Some Fellows will have dealt with the whole range of policy matters faced by their respective officials, while others will have become deeply involved in just a few select issues. Throughout the year emphasis is placed on linking theory and practice, analysis and action.

Though they operate on a high level, the work done by the Fellows is not always glamorous. Sometimes it is frustrating or pedestrian, and there are times when it becomes routine. The experience of most Fellows contains a mixture of significant involvement in major and minor government issues and routine tasks that help make a high Federal official's office run smoothly.

In 1975-76, for example, assignment experiences of the Fellows ranged from traveling the Nation with the Vice President and members of the Cabinet to solicit citizen suggestions for domestic policy and drafting background papers summarizing those ideas for the State of the Union Message, to keeping track of Secretarial correspondence to be certain it was answered; from doing policy analysis involved in locating a new major metropolitan area airport, to helping develop Federal safety standards for truck brakes; from spending several weeks in the Middle East helping to set up the Sinai Support Mission, to representing a Cabinet Secretary at a local festival; from studying long-range world food supplies, to maintaining an official's appointment calendar; from traveling to Guatemala to assess earthquake damage in order to formulate and present to the President a comprehensive program for U.S. disaster assistance, to studying and analyzing China's oil reserves; from coordinating a program of idea development and scholarly seminars on future trends for an entire department, to supervising hotel and travel logistics for a Cabinet Secretary's trip.

As the foregoing indicates, it is difficult to generalize about White House Fellows' assignments. One can say, however, that the tasks demand flexibility, a willingness to work hard, and the capacity to learn quickly. Usually these are the very qualities that have already made the Fellows promising leaders in their own private careers.

Seminar Program

A distinguishing feature of the Fellowship experience is the seminar program, in which the Fellows participate as a class.

The seminar program complements the learning process inherent in the Fellows' assignments and broadens their exposure. It consists of a series of off-record meetings, usually held two or three times a week throughout the Fellowship year, with prominent representatives from both the public and private sectors. These meetings in Washington are supplemented with occasional travel to experience, observe, and examine at firsthand major issues confronting our society.

During the Fellowship year, the seminar program typically includes meetings with the President, the Vice President, current and former Cabinet Secretaries and senior White House staff members, Senators and Members of Congress, Justices of the Supreme Court, the Secretary General of the United Nations, ambassadors, mayors and governors, major media figures like Walter Cronkite and the editorial leadership of The New York Times and The Washington Post, labor leaders such as George Meany, Leonard Woodcock, and Albert Shanker, the chief executive officers of major corporations, leading scholars, authors, and cultural figures, and the heads of citizen, professional, and industrial organizations, and of the Democratic and Republican Parties.

In addition to this domestic focus, Fellows have occasionally examined international affairs and U.S. foreign policy, and developed understanding for the philosophies and points of view of other governments through overseas travel.

The seminar program is supported by private funds contributed to the White House Fellows Foundation.

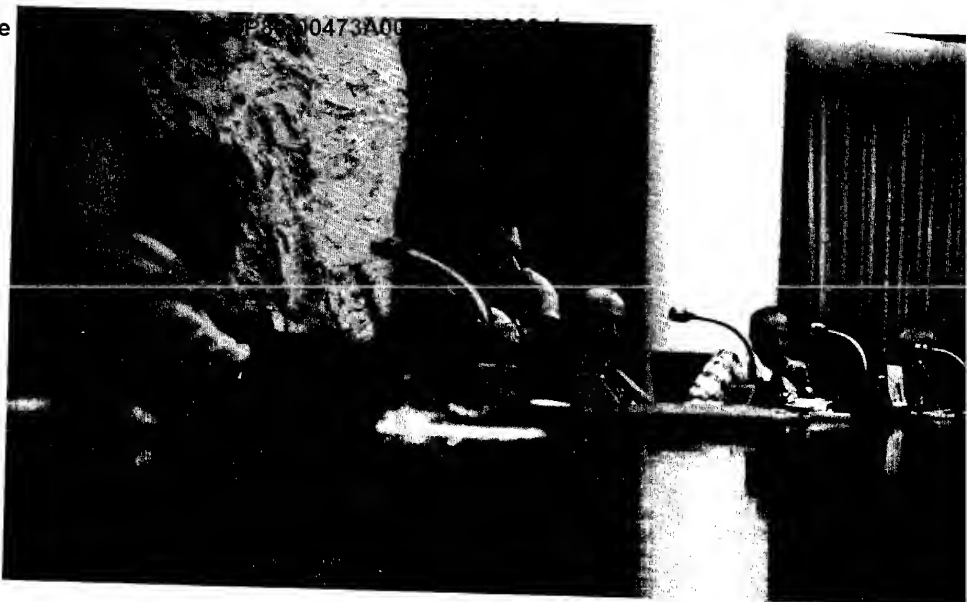

Donors since 1964 have included the Carnegie Corporation of New York, the Ford Foundation, the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, the Richardson Foundation, the William Randolph Hearst Foundation, the Kaiser Family Foundation, the Jesse Philips Foundation, and the Thomas Small Foundation.

Other contributions have come from David Rockefeller, Thomas Watson Jr., General Foods, IBM, North American Rockwell, Cargill, Continental Oil, Burlington Industries, Ford Motor Company, Allis-Chalmers, NL Industries; the foundations or trusts of U.S. Steel, Olin Corporation, General Mills, PPG Industries, General Electric, Westinghouse, the Cincinnati Enquirer, the Southeast First National Bank of Miami, and Crown Zellerbach; and numerous individuals who share a common commitment to the worth of the program's objectives and an appreciation for its record of success.

Among these individuals are current and former members of the Commission and its Regional Selection Panels, and most alumni of the program. In conjunction with the Nation's Bicentennial, the spirit of which the White House Fellowship program so clearly exemplifies, the White House Fellows Foundation is engaged in

Program Results

Perhaps the most distinguishing mark of former Fellows is increased service to their country, communities, and fellow citizens. In some cases this has been manifested by their pursuit of a career in public service; more likely it has led former Fellows to return to government for an additional period in appointive or elective office, or to contribute their volunteer efforts at the local, state, or national level.

Former Fellows, for example, presently serve in Washington as Secretary to the Cabinet; Urban Mass Transportation Administrator; Solicitor of the Department of Labor; Assistant Secretary of the Interior; Assistant Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency; Deputy Assistant Secretary of Agriculture; Deputy Assistant Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare; Congressman from Colorado's Second District; Director of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency; Assistant Counsel to the President; and Special Assistant to the President for Intergovernmental Affairs.

Others have served or serve on school, museum, and foundation boards; on governors' task forces and commissions; and as Attorney General of Alaska, Deputy Mayor of San Francisco, Assistant Secretary of Administration and Finance of Massachusetts, Deputy Speaker of the New Hampshire House of Representatives, Director of Public Works of Baltimore, District Attorney of San Francisco, and President of the Sierra Club.

Former Fellows have also consistently distinguished themselves in their private sector careers. Within the group can be found the second woman Vice President in IBM's history; the Deans of Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service, the University of Chicago's School of Social Service Administration, and Howard University's School of Engineering; the Publisher of The Dallas Times Herald; the presidents of the National Commercial Credit Corporation and the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center; the youngest major general in the United States Air Force; the chief executive officers of Hunt Investment Corporation and Kaiser Resources Ltd.; senior vice presidents of the Wells Fargo Bank and International White, Weld; directors of Booz, Allen & Hamilton and Tishman Realty; vice presidents of General Mills and Teledyne

Ryan; the presidents of the Wine Institute and the African-American Institute; and the senior counsel of Continental Oil, to name just a few.

Close and continuing contacts among White House Fellows are maintained through the White House Fellows Association, a non-profit organization established for the purposes of maintaining and broadening its members' understanding of government, encouraging and facilitating their contribution to public service, and furthering the purposes of the White House Fellowship program. The current president of the Association is Thomas O'Brien '70-71, Associate Vice President of Harvard University; his successor for 1977-78 will be Julia Vadala Taft '70-71, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Human Development of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

In the spring of each year, members of the Association gather in Washington, D.C., for a three-day Annual Meeting and Seminar, during which they meet for off-record discussions with key government and private sector leaders, typically including the President, members of the Cabinet and White House staff, Agency Administrators, and Members of Congress and the Senate. A smaller mid-year meeting is also held annually, and a periodic newsletter is published for members of the Association and friends of the program.

General Information

Eligibility and Applications

Under the terms of President Johnson's Executive Order establishing the program, the Commission may accept applications from persons of all occupations who will have attained the age of 23 but not the age of 36 by September 1, 1977. Applicants must be citizens of the United States.

Employees of the Federal Government are not eligible for the program, with the exception of career military personnel of the Armed Services (Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, and Coast Guard). Career military personnel who are selected as Fellows may not, however, be assigned to an agency where they might serve during their military careers. (At present those agencies are the Departments of Defense and State and the White House.)

Requests for applications for the 1977-78 Fellowship year should be directed to the President's Commission on White House Fellowships, Washington, D.C. 20415, and must be postmarked not later than November 1, 1976. Completed applications must be postmarked not later than November 15, 1976. Exceptions to postmark deadlines may not be made, and only official application forms for 1977-78 Fellowships will be considered.

Selection Process

The selection of White House Fellows is made without regard to sex, race, ethnic origin, religion, marital status, place of residence, or political preference.

The selection process is designed to identify young men and women who give promise of providing the kind of leadership that will influence the shape of our society for many years to come. Fellows will normally have completed their educations and begun their careers, and each will have demonstrated exceptional ability, marked leadership qualities, unusual promise of future development, high moral character, and tangible expression of concern about the problems facing our society and the quality of life in America.

Following the President's announcement early in August of the opening of the annual White House Fellowship competition, applications are available for approximately three months from the Commission office. Over 40,000 applications were sent out in the fall of 1975 for the 1976-77 Fellowship competition. Of those, 2864 eligible individuals filed completed applications with the Commission by the postmark deadline date.

Applications are first reviewed under supervision of the Commission office by members of a panel of judges in Washington, D.C. Primary consideration is given to such factors as professional achievement, intellectual ability, evidence of leadership, special talents, and demonstrated interest in the affairs of the community, state, and Nation. Of those who apply, approximately 100 candidates are selected as Regional Finalists. Each Regional Finalist's file is then forwarded to one of the Commission's Regional Selection Panels, located in 11 geographic areas in the United States.

Members of the Regional Panels review the applications forwarded to them, along with personal evaluations of the Regional Finalists that are solicited by the Commission office at this stage of the selection process. The Panels then personally interview all Regional Finalists at a Panel meeting, usually held sometime in March, and recommend those candidates who the Panel feels should be selected as National Finalists and interviewed by the Commission. All Regional Finalists attend their Regional Panel interview at their own expense.

After receiving the advice of the Regional Panels, the Commission on White House Fellow-

The Commission reimburses the National Finalists for travel within the United States, but not for international travel, and pays the expenses of the selection weekend itself.

After additional interviews and reviews of all pertinent information, the Commission makes its recommendations to the President, who then appoints the new group of White House Fellows.

Shortly after their selection by the President, new White House Fellows return to Washington for a week of interviews with various agencies within the Executive Branch, preparatory to the determination of their assignments. Announcement of assignments is made by the Director of the Commission prior to September 1, when the Fellowship year begins.

Remuneration

White House Fellowships are one-year educational sabbaticals in government. (An application for a White House Fellowship is not an application for Federal employment.) Those selected are expected to return to their normal careers at the conclusion of their Fellowships.

White House Fellowships run from September 1 to August 31. Fellows receive an annual stipend based on previous education, experience, and salary, and on the particular role that a Fellow is assigned in his or her agency. (Adjustments for cost of living differences are not, however, taken into consideration.) The maximum stipend at present is $33,397. Moving and other relocation expenses are not reimbursed.

Because this is a fellowship, the spirit of which is public service, one may find that the stipend awarded is not the same amount as one's present salary; it may be less and is unlikely to be more.

Program Administration

The Commission on White House Fellowships is appointed by the President to monitor the selection of Fellows and the implementation of the program. Members serve at the pleasure of the President and do not have fixed terms.

Chairmen of the Commission since its establishment in 1964 have been David Rockefeller, Chairman of the Board of the Chase Manhattan Bank (1964-66); C. Douglas Dillon, Chairman of the U.S. and Foreign Securities Corporation and former Secretary of the Treasury (1966-68); the late William H. Hastie, former Senior Circuit Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals (1968-

1975-76 White House Fellows and senior scholars of the Brookings Institution debate current policy issues.

Ford Foundation President McGeorge Bundy replies to a 1975-76 White House Fellow's question.

The 1976-77 White House Fellows

Raoul H. Alcalá, 35, Lieutenant Colonel, United States Army. Born in San Antonio, Texas, he was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1962, subsequently receiving an M.A. degree in international relations and an M. Phil. degree in political science from the Yale University Graduate School. He is also a graduate of the Army's Command and General Staff College. Lieutenant Colonel Alcalá has served in Germany and commanded troops in combat in Vietnam. He served as an analyst on political and military affairs at the U.S. advisory headquarters for central Vietnam; as a Debate Coach, Assistant Professor, and Research Fellow in the Department of Social Sciences at West Point; and as an analyst on budget and educational matters for the Office of the Secretary of Defense. He is a Fellow of the Interuniversity Seminar on Armed Forces and Society and has published several articles on international politics and civil-military relations. His military awards include the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Commendation Medal, Presidential Unit Citation, and Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Charles A. Ansbacher, 33, Conductor and Musical Director of the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra. Born in Providence, Rhode Island, he received a B.A. degree in music from Brown University, an M.M. degree from the University of Cincinnati, and has completed the work on his D.M.A. from the University of Cincinnati. He studied conducting under Pierre Boulez, Dean Dixon, Pierre Monteux, Max Rudolf, and others. His guest conducting activities include the Denver Symphony, the Cincinnati Symphony, and the Frysk Orkest in Leeuwarden, Holland. He has led several tours to Europe, specializing in artistic, cultural, and musical events. Mr. Ansbacher teaches part-time at the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs and hosts a weekly television program on the arts. In his six years with the Colorado Springs Symphony, the season has been expanded from eight concerts to 38. He serves as a conductor and as a master of ceremonies in the regular season and in the new Summer Symphony concerts in the city parks in Colorado Springs. Mr. Ansbacher has twice been elected Vice President of the Pikes Peak Musicians Association, Local 154 of the American Federation of Musicians. He serves on the Advisory Board of the Avery Fischer Artist Awards of Lincoln Center.

W. Anderson Barnes, 32, Senior Development Director, The Rouse Company, and Assistant Vice President, The Howard Research and Development Corporation, Columbia, Maryland. Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, he received a B.A. degree in American Studies from Yale University in 1966 and an M.B.A. degree from the Harvard Business School in 1970. While in business school, Mr. Barnes served as a founding member of the Urban Affairs Lecture series. From 1966 to 1968 he was a member of the faculty of the Noble and Greenough School and since 1970 a manager of new community development in California and Maryland. In his current position he directs the planning and building of the new city of Columbia, Maryland. Mr. Barnes is a member of the Board of Trustees of Sierra Nevada College and a director of The Columbia Interfaith Housing Corporation, a non-profit corporation providing low and moderate cost housing. He is a council member of the Howard County Manpower Planning Council, The Baltimore Metropolitan Manpower Consortium, and the Guilford Steering Committee. He was a member of the American Delegation of the US-USSR Joint Working Group on New Town that visited the Soviet Union in February 1976.

David J. Cleary, 31, Opportunities Assessment Manager, 3M Company, St. Paul, Minnesota. Born in Bloomington, Illinois, Mr. Cleary received a B.S. degree in 1963 from the University of Notre Dame, where he was active in athletics and student organizations, and received an M.S. degree in chemical engineering from Iowa State University in 1965. As a research engineer at 3M, he developed two products, a hospital tape and a sterilization device, now used world-wide. Results of his research have been published in several journals. Since 1966, he has served in market management at 3M, with international responsibility. Mr. Cleary has served on a city commission, on the county mental health board, on a school board advisory committee, and presently is on the advisory board for a home for mentally handicapped. He was a member of the Minnesota State House of Representatives from 1972-74. Mr. Cleary received a Jaycee Outstanding Young Man of the Year Award, a city Human Rights Award, and a citation from Project Concern for work with the handicapped. He was also named the Outstanding Legislator by the Minnesota Legislative Evaluation Assembly in 1974.

Geraldine V. Cox, 32, Technical Coordinator of Environmental Programs for Raytheon Oceanographic & Environmental Services, Portsmouth, Rhode Island. Born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, she received a B.S. degree in biological sciences from Drexel Institute of Technology in 1966, and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in environmental sciences from Drexel in 1967 and 1970, respectively. Dr. Cox is chairman of the Water Pollution Control Federation's Marine Water Quality Committee, which she organized. She also serves on the Aims and Objectives and Program Committees of the Federation. Dr. Cox is a member of the Professional Water Quality Committee of the Marine Technology Society, for whom she recently chaired a workshop on marine bioassays, and a member of the Board of Directors and Vice President of the Association of Environmental Laboratories. She is National Executive Vice President of Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority. Dr. Cox was honored as Drexel's Panhellenic Woman of the Year in 1966, and in 1975 she was selected as one of the Ten Outstanding Young Women of America. She has published over 15 technical articles, and has chaired and presented lectures at many national and international technical gatherings. Her biography appears in American Men and Women of Science and Who's Who Among American Women.

Marie T. Dias, 33, Executive Director of Children's World Educational Centers, Inc., Boston, Massachusetts. Born in Boston, she attended Massachusetts Bay Community College and Wheelock College, received her Ed.M. from Harvard University in 1972, and is presently completing her dissertation for an Ed.D. at Boston University School of Education. Ms. Dias was a member of the Infant and Toddler Day Care Task Force and helped write the Massachusetts Rules and Regulations for Infant and Toddler Day Care Centers. She serves on the Board of the National Black United Fund, Inc., is a Vice-President of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, Inc., and a member of the Harvard University Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa. She has lectured at universities and to businesses and has appeared on a number of television and radio talk shows. In addition to receiving the Black Analysis Fellowship in 1974 and 1975 and the Boston University Whitney Young Fellowship in 1974, she was chosen as Massachusetts' Outstanding Young Woman of the Year in 1975. She is listed in the 100 Black Influentials in Boston, 1976.

William J. Drummond, 31, Jerusalem bureau chief of the Los Angeles Times. A native of Oakland, California, he holds an M.S. degree from the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism, where he was awarded the Vision Magazine Award on graduation for high scholastic achievement. He received his B.A. with honors in journalism from the University of California, Berkeley, in 1965. His first newspaper assignment was as a reporter with the Louisville, Kentucky, Courier-Journal, where he specialized in civil rights coverage and the poverty program. Since joining the Los Angeles Times in 1967, Mr. Drummond has held a variety of assignments and written on a wide spectrum of topics. He worked as a Los Angeles-based reporter and assistant metropolitan editor for four years, writing in-depth stories on campus violence, prison racial tension, and police-community relations. Some of his articles have appeared in the Columbia Journalism Review, Esquire, and Harper's. He was assigned overseas as bureau chief in New Delhi in 1971 and spent three years in the Subcontinent, reporting on political, economic, and social affairs in India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Nepal, Sri Lanka, and Afghanistan. Mr. Drummond is listed in Who's Who in America and Who's Who in Black America.

Walter M. Fiedorowicz, 29, attorney with the law firm of Cummings & Lockwood, Stamford, Connecticut. Born in Hartford, Connecticut, he received a B.A. degree in American Studies from Yale University in 1968 and a J.D. degree from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1971. While in law school Mr. Fiedorowicz served as a member of the Editorial Board of the Virginia Law Review and graduated as a member of the Order of the Coif. At Cummings & Lockwood, Mr. Fiedorowicz's practice is concentrated in the area of corporate and securities law. He is an organizer and first chairman of the Connecticut Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts and serves as a member of the Connecticut Advisory Committee of the United States Civil Rights Commission. Mr. Fiedorowicz is active in the American and Connecticut Bar Associations and serves on the Executive Committee of the Young Lawyers Section of the Connecticut Bar Association and on the Connecticut Bar Association Executive Committee on Corporations and Other Business Organizations. He is also active in civic activities in Ridgefield, Connecticut.

Donald H. Haider, 34, Associate Professor of Public Management, Northwestern University Graduate School of Management, Evanston, Illinois. Born in Winnetka, Illinois, he received a B.A. degree from Stanford in 1964 and subsequently received M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in political science from Columbia University. Dr. Haider was named an International Fellow and a Harriman Fellow at Columbia, was awarded a Congressional Fellowship by the American Political Science Association, and served as a Guest Scholar at the Brookings Institution. He is the author of one book and has written several articles in the fields of political science, public administration, and urban affairs. Dr. Haider has also served as a consultant to state and local governments, both in New York and in Illinois.

Gail H. Klapper, 33, attorney with the Denver law firm of Davis, Graham & Stubbs. Born in Denver, Colorado, she received a B.A. degree with a major in political science from Wellesley College, where she served as President of the College Government. In 1968 she received a J.D. degree from the University of Colorado School of Law. Ms. Klapper was elected Chairperson of Leadership Denver '75, a program designed to locate and motivate potential leaders in the Denver metropolitan community. She currently serves on the Board of Directors of the Leadership Denver Alumni Association. She is on the Board of the Denver Mental Health Center and participates on the Editorial Review Board for the Colorado Woman's Digest, a publication designed to focus on the concerns of women in the Rocky Mountain area. Ms. Klapper is active in her local Bar Association and has lectured on the use of the legal assistant in the practice of law. She is listed in the Bicentennial Edition of Who's Who in Colorado.

Kai N. Lee, 30, Assistant Professor of Environmental Studies and Political Science, University of Washington, Seattle. Born in New York City, he received an A.B. degree in physics magna cum laude from Columbia in 1966, and a Ph.D. from Princeton in 1971. He was awarded a postdoctoral fellowship by the Social Science Research Council in 1971 and since then has worked in the areas of energy, environment, and public policy. Currently he is engaged in research on nuclear power plant siting; regional electric power development in the Pacific Northwest; research policy for nuclear waste management; and public awareness of energy and environmental issues. He is a member of the advisory board of the journal, Policy Sciences, and a member of the Advisory Council on Environmental Education of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Dr. Lee was also chairman of the Federal Energy Administration oversight committee for the University of Texas study of the economic, social, and environmental implications of California's 1976 ballot initiative on nuclear power. Dr. Lee has been a consultant to the Danforth Foundation, the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and the Battelle Pacific Northwest Laboratories. He is listed in American Men and Women of Science.

Susan Beilby Magee, 31, Director of the City of Seattle Office of Women's Rights and member of the Mayor's Cabinet. Born in Glendale, California, she received a Canfield Scholarship and honors at entrance to Pomona College, from which she was graduated in 1966 with a B.A. degree in international relations. She has worked in New York, California, and Washington at the United Nations, Radio Free Europe, and in business for national manufacturers. Appointed in 1974 to her current position, she administers the employment, housing, affirmative action, and contract compliance laws and provides services to women, business, labor, and governmental agencies. As Director she established the first women's employment service and opened city job opportunities for women in management, police and fire service, and the skilled crafts. Active in many community endeavors, Ms. Magee is currently a director on three boards, including the Lockenby Company Foundation and a new board formed by business leaders to create jobs in the private sector. In 1971 she was named Washington State's Most Outstanding Young Woman and appears in Outstanding Young Women of America.

Marv Lynn Myers, 30, Director of the Division of Human Rights of the state of South Dakota Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs in Pierre. Born in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, she received a B.A. degree summa cum laude in political science from the University of South Dakota, where she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She served as a management analyst for the General Services Administration in Chicago and was awarded an M.S. degree in the Management of the Public Service by DePaul University in 1974. She is a member of the National Board of Directors of the National Organization for Women, Inc. (NOW), having also served as a national task force coordinator, national vice president for finance, and state coordinator for South Dakota NOW. She has also been a member of the National Board of Directors of Federally Employed Women, Inc., and the Chicago Board of Directors of the U.S. Committee for UNICEF. In South Dakota state government, Ms. Myers has served as a member of the Governor's Personnel Advisory Council, the Health Manpower Planning and Linkage System Task Force, and the Career Education Project Advisory Council. She has been listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, Outstanding Young Women of America, and Who's Who in Government.

Born in New York City, she received a B.A. degree from Stanford University in 1966 and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from The Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. In 1975 she was awarded an ARCO/Mellon Fellowship to participate in an Aspen Institute sponsored international workshop, which analyzed issues in developed-developing state relations and prepared recommendations for consideration during the Seventh Special Session of the U.N. General Assembly. In her present position Dr. Pisano is a member of the School of Foreign Service graduate and undergraduate governing committees and the graduate school faculty. She has helped in the development of a multidisciplinary program for graduate study in international relations. In addition, she lectures on the American political system and the U.S. policy-making process to international groups visiting the U.S.

Judy P. Rosenstreich, 32, State Representative in the Vermont General Assembly. Born in New York City, she received a B.A. degree in political science from the University of Connecticut in 1967. She began her career in politics in 1972 and was elected to the House of Representatives at age 28. During her two terms in office, she has served on many boards and commissions within the State of Vermont. At the conclusion of her first legislative session, she was selected by the Eagleton Institute of Politics as an outstanding state legislator. Representative Rosenstreich was named Vermont's Outstanding Young Woman of the Year in 1973 and received the Career Woman of the Year award in 1974. She is presently on the Board of Directors of several public service organizations, including the Vermont Children's Aid Society, the Vermont Dental Care Program, and Vermont Public Radio, Inc. She has been appointed by the Governor to the Supervisory Board of the Commission on the Administration of Justice. In her capacity as a lawmaker, Mrs. Rosenstreich also accepts many public speaking engagements from social, political, and professional groups.

Lynn A. Schenk, 31, attorney with San Diego Gas & Electric Company, San Diego, California, and Adjunct Professor of Law at the University of San Diego Law School. Born in New York City, she received a B.A. degree in political science from UCLA in 1967 and a J.D. degree from the University of San Diego Law School in 1970. She also studied international law at the London School of Economics for a year. Ms. Schenk serves on the Board of Directors of the San Diego Legal Aid Society, and was President and co-founder of the Lawyers Club of San Diego. She is also a founder and first Vice President of Equal Rights Advisors, Inc., a publicly funded law office established to handle sex discrimination cases for low income women, and a developer of California Women Lawyers. Ms. Schenk is one of the originators and Directors of the Women's Bank, and serves on the City's Advisory Board on the Status of Women and on the State Attorney General's Women's Rights Task Force. She has been honored as the San Diego Fresno's Council on Women's Service, Business and Professional Club's "Woman of the Year" for 1973, and is the first woman to receive the local Jaycees "Outstanding Young Citizen of San Diego" award, also in 1973. She is listed in Outstanding Young Women of America and Community Leaders and Noteworthy Americans.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence

FROM : Michael J. Malanick
Acting Deputy Director for Administration

SUBJECT : White House Fellowships

Sir:

1. You may recall that last July when we were asked about participating in the White House Fellows program we advised you that, while we did not have a firm policy governing the situation, we saw no reason why we shouldn't accept a qualified and security-cleared candidate for a tour of duty with us. Further, the Office of General Counsel has no legal objection to such an arrangement. Therefore, we suggest that you mention our views to your successor as Bruce Hasenkamp requests in his letter to you.

2. We have prepared a reply for your signature to Bruce telling him of your intentions.

MICHAEL J. MALANICK
